Opinion on the Bill.

egraph to the POST-DISPATCH.
HINGTON, D. C., March 1.—The disdon of the tariff bill prepared by the cratic members of the Ways and Means Committee of the House this morning, was the principal topic of conversation among the Democrats at the Capitol. The features of the bill had gradually become known, as it was in process of preparation by the committee, and therefore it excited no surprise. The general opinion of Democrats was that the bill was as good a measure as could have been prepared by the committee, but it will undoubtedly be greatly modified in the House before it stands any chance of passing that body.

Chairman Mills when asked by the Post-Disparch correspondent for his opinion of the bill as presented to the committee, said the bill was carefully and conscientiously prepared. All of the Democrats on the committee two wings of the Democrate party can unite and that it will command a great nany votes from the Republican side of the chamber.

many votes from the Republican side of the chamber.

Congressman Tom Reed of Maine, the leader of the Republican side of the House, said: "I have not examined the bill carefully, but I know its contents well enough to know that God is still good to the Republican party."

Congressman Foran of Ohlo said the measure its practically dead already.

The two Breckenridges said that wool had been dealt with as well as the committee believed it could conscientiously, and that while this action might not bring to the bill the support of the wool men, they thought it as fair a compromise as the committee could have agreed on.

Mr. McKinley of Ohlo, whose opinion is probably more valuable than that of any other Republican member of the House, said of the bill this morning: "It is a long stride in the direction of free trade. The tree list is made up to catch Southern votes. The bill is wholly bad and indefensible."

Maj. Rathbone's Case.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH. Washington, D. C., March 1 .- The Senate deration a peculiar case. It was that of one of Maj. Rathbone's competitors for the position was Mr. Lebreton of San Francisco. Rathbone's friends promised Lebreton that if he would withdraw Rathbone would make him Vice-Consul. When Rathbone was appointed he at first repudiated this contract. Afterward he sent in Lebreton's name with an explanation of the case to Secretary Bayard. Lebreton then withdraw his name. Since that time he sent in Lebreton's name with an explana-tion of the case to Secretary Bayard. Lebre-ton then withdrew his name. Since that time Mrs. Lebreton, who was anxious for her hus-band's appointment, has been working against Rathbone, in hopes of preventing his confirmation. As the result of her work, most of the Democratic Senators are against Rathbone. His appointment was yesterday referred back to the committee.

Senator Cockrell's Illness.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH. VASHINGTON, D. C., March 1.—Senator Cockrell is quite a sick man. He was complaining of a cold for several days before he finally gave up work and went to bed yesterday. He was he was worse. He is confined to his bed, and he has the doctor several times every day. His condition is not dangerous, or even serious, but he is quite sick.

General of the Army.

Assistant-Prosecuting-Attorney Dierkes this on issued a warrant for criminal as sault against Allen Hall, the young medical student living on East Grand avenue, who is alleged to have accomplished who is alleged to have accomplished he ruin of Josie Le Brell, the 17-year-old girl who attempted suicide yesterday morning by jumping into one of the water basins at the reservoir to drown herself. The girl's parents reside at No. 817 Bremen avenue, and she was employed as a domestic at No. 812 Penrose street, in the house of the engineer of the Water-works. Officer Stock, who swore to the information, relates the story of the girl somewhat differently from what it was told yesterday. He stated she was suffering so much from nervous prostration that she was unable to leave the house. She had told him to-day that Hall had taken her to the waiting-room of the Broadway car stables, and there brought her some wine. She refused to drink it, but finally did sip a little. They left the place and sat down for a while on the road. There Hall attempted liberties with her, and, when she resented, apologized to her and said he would take her home. The door of the house was locked and he said he would take her home. The door of the house was locked and he said he would take her home. I on where the public feeling shown was something very much like rioting. The Tory candidate was several times recognized and hustled in the streets. Once he appeared in considerable danger and had to take refuge in a committee-room guarded by muscular men hired for the occasion. In spite of this he secured the seat, atthough by a considerably decreased majority. The Liberais, in fact, did better even than in the 1885 election, by did better even than in the 1885 election, by did better even than in the 1885 election, by did better even than in the 1885 election, but they recommend that such force the split in the party, owing to Gilastone's adoption of home ruile, was somewhat at a disadvantage, being unable to make a personal canvass. On the other hand, he had the advantage of affording a personal illustration of the high-handed deeds of the Government in Ireland. Yesterday a wagon paraded the constituency with a man on a plank bed to excite sympathy. The Unionist papers have started a number of theories to account for the increase in the Liberal strength. The Times, ever ready to assail what it considers the inferior races, at tributes it to the fact that in the last two elections the Liberals were represented by a Bengalce-Baboo, the most enlightened and eloquent speakers of the English language. The real reason for the

This being the last of bye elections for the present, it conclusively proves that the results have generally been ecided in favor of the Liberals.

A TICKLISH QUESTION.

The postponed debate on the exclusion of public speakers from Trafalgar Square begins to-day. The question is a very ticklish one to a majority of the London members, who are Tories. The Government would like to give every support in their power to the Commissioner of Police. Repre-Southwark election, however, in consequence of which the Ministers held a private meeting yesterday. The result is not made public, but it is rumored that it was decided not to oppos Russell's motion for an inquiry into the whole subject of meetings in public places.

CHAMBERLAIN'S MISSION. It is fortunate for Chamberlain that the vote on his special mission to Washington also omes on to-day. The Radicals are too anxious to discuss the right of public meeting to waste time on a comparatively insignificant matter. This opposition to the vote comes from Labouchere, but is considerably actuated by personal animosity. Chamberlain will find little support.

THE PARIS EXHIBITION. A Big Furniture Factory Burned-Destruc tive Farm Fire.

NEW YORK, March 1 .- The big furniture fac street and Lexington avenue caught fire at Fire Department on Manhattan Island was alled to the point. The whole factory will be lestroyed. It is directly opposite the Hospital for Crippled and Ruptured Children, the scene of so many recent fires.

The Pottler & Stymus building was partly occupied by the Herter Bros., also furniture manufacturers; W. H. E rtell, furniture manufact cupied by the Herter Bros., also furnituremanufacturers; W. H. E rtell, furniture manufacturer, and the Pneumatic Tube Company; D. B. Loekmann, a designer, and Wm. Armstrong, a carpenter. The building was owned by Potter & Stymus. The Vanderblit Hotel, on the northeast corner of Lexington avenve and Forty-second street, was seriously damaged by fire. The hosaltal for the ruptured on the northwest corfer was also badly scorched. At half-past two the fire was under control. The loss is estimated at $1,000,000.

The elevated railway structure on Forty-second street caught fire and the ties burned lustily until the great walls of the building fell and crushed down the iron structure. The efforts of the firemen were especially directed toward saving the great storage building which stood next to the furniture factory. It was filled with goods worth over a million dollars. It smoked and the great iron shuters became red hot, but the hundreds of streams of water which were thrown on it prevented it from blazing. The building was damaged considerably, but its contents were saved. The roof of St. Agnes' Church caught fire several times, but the damage was small. Most of the losses are believed to be covered fully by insurance.

BURLINGTON OFFICIALS CONFIDENT.

The Burlington officials were more confident than ever this morning. They said that a number of freight trains in Nebraska, Iowa, Missouri and Illinois had been moved. Some through trains came in this morning and the full suburban service is in operation. About 200 Reading engineers have arrived in the city and were being examined to-day. Many of them have already been put to work.

Mr. E. F. Bradford, the C., B. & Q. agent here, has had thirteen special policemen appointed to watch and protect the freight-houses and patroi the yards at night. The thirteen were chosen from among the freight hendlers who were made idle by the strike. Four crews of enginemen arrived here from the East last night and are being used on passenger runs to-day. Another installment of over six crews is expected this afternoon. If they get here an effort will be made to get out one or two freight trains to-morrow. The Brotherhood has been successful in inducing several engineers and firemen who came here from other places not to go to work. The special and regular police are vigilant about the depot and yards, and crowds are not allowed to form. The entrances to the depot, except those to the ladies' and gentlemen's waiting-rooms, have been closed and ropes stretched across the platform to prevent crowds of idlers and spectators from flooding the platform. All except passengers, rallroad employes, policemen and newspaper reporters are excluded from the depot.

The Denver Engineers and Firemen.

DENVER, Colo., March 1 .- The members of the Brotherhoods of Engineers and Firemen held secret meeting here last night which was attended by men from every road running into tended by men from every road running into the city. It is learned that they adopted resolutions endorsing the Burlington strike and resolved to stand together for their de-mands. They denounced any violence against the men whom the company may put on their engines and any destruction of property, and agreed, in case of demonstrations of this kind, to offer their services to suppress it. The company moved a passenger train East last evening, the first since Monday, but no passengers were on board. The engineer was last evening, the first since Monday, but no passengers were on board. The engineer was a man who has been employed in a photograph gallery in this city for three years past.

The Trouble at McCook, Neb. Superintendent of Public Bulldings Everhart spent some time at the Midland this morning. In speaking of the cause of the accident, Supt. Everhart said: "Even to-day it is rather hard to tell the exact cause. The ironwork, which I think caused the difficulty, is at the bottom of the wreck, and everything must be removed before the iron can be examined. The iron beam which supported the truss, which in turn supported the wall and roof, is, in my judgment, responsible for the break. It must have given away at the end, allowing the trusses to fall, thus carrying the wall with them. One of the imperied bricks would have done the work, and they could easily have been placed without the knowledge of the contractor. Two iron plates helped support this eye-beam and did part of the work of the wall. If it should have happened that the eye-beam did not rest over the center of either of these grates the weight of the trusses would naturally have caused the plate to give way. There are various reasons given, but this is my theory, and I think when we find the iron work I speak of it will prove that I am correct."

His honor sat down to his desk as early as 9:30, but the papers thereon did not receive ich attention. The ante-room was already filled with the throng of nondescript visitors, who are to be found every morning between the hours of 10 and 12, from the candidate for the House of Refuge candidate for office, but the "regulars" were forced to bide their time, while the heads of the departments, the Chief of Police and other officials were tendering their congratulations. Mayor Francis, who is invariably courteous to the newspaper men, no matter how busy he may be, found time to tell a POST-DISPATCH respectively.

"THE MAYOR TALKS.

"There is nothing very new to say," he began, "as the newspapers have covered the work or the delegation at Washington very thoroughly. Every man who composed it helped to win the victory and deserves his quota of credit, and it would be unfair to laud any one member at the expense of another. Before reaching Washington I was satisfied that San Francisco stood no chance whatever, and this to win the victory and deserves his quota of credit, and it would be unfair to land any one member at the expense of another. Before reaching Washington I was satisfied that San Francisco stood no chance whatever, and this should be a matter for congratulation, as every one who was posted on the situation realized the folly of holding the Convention at a point so distant that many of the most representative men and those who above all should lend the weight of their influence to the proceedings would not have been able to attend. Yet, on arriving at Washington, I found that San Francisco had some very earnest backers and not a few strong arguments to sustain her. It was claimed that the electoral votes of California, Oregon and Nevada, fourteen in all, I believe, were not to be slighted, and that the choice of San Francisco was necessary in order to insure their gain to the Democrats. On looking over the situation, however, I found that 'Frisco was already distanced and that Chicago was, in reality, the only formidable opponent to St. Louis. We then went to work with a will, in the manner that has been set forth a dozen times. The Chicago people were really more concerned over the fixing of the date than the choice of location; they wanted the convention to be held at as early a date as possible, and when they were defeated the first time in their efforts to this end, their weakness was very apparent to us. From that time the victory was ours and we were positively assured of this at midnight preceding the day of the final balloting. Then we very readily assisted in changing the date from July to June. One thing was very marked, and that was the absence of all bitter feeling among the champions of the various competing citles. It was a trightic context and each claimant wanted the convention badly, but there were no slanderous or cover attacks whatever on the surroundings of any of the three towns, the fight being couducted solely on the merits of each. 'Democrats must favor Democrats' was our motto, and when i prevent in future the accumulation of an enormous surplus in the treasury, and though the New Yorkers, like other business men, are divided as to the best means of accomplishing this, they are unanimous in clamoring for an adjustment of the tariff at an early date. The bill to this end is now in the hands of the subcommittee of the Committee on Ways and Means at Washington and should reach that body as a whole to-day. Its objects, I believe, is a reduction of both the tariff and the internal revenue tax, the commodity governed by the latter to be cheapened being tobacco. Congress will no doubt give this subject an early consideration, and it was to hasten its action that we assisted in changing the date of the convention to June. Do I think the location of the convention in St. Louis will affect the selection of the the pemocratic nemiprevent in future the accumulation of an enor-to June. Do I think the location of the convention in St. Louis will affect the selection of the Democratio nominee? No, I can not say that I do, for the simple reason that Mr. Cleveland would be nominated in any part of the country."

COMPTROLLER CAMPBELL, when he reached his office this morning, found a visible token of welcome in the form of a magnificent bouquet of roses, helictropes and other choice flowers, presented by the employes of the office. He was subjected to much handshaking and told every one that he was very glad to get back. "The only thing that I envy the East," said he, "is the employes of the omee. He was subjected to much handshaking and told every one that he was very glad to get back. "The only thing that I envy the East," said he, "is the good things they have to eat there and the way that they cook them. Of course, too, I envy Washington its clean streets, which reminds me that the voting on the streetsprinkling amendment did not surprise me, though that on the tax amendment did. There is no use in my going over the history of the convention fight, as I would add nothing that is new. There was no opposition to St. Louis on the part of the Administration, Vilas, Dickinson and Scott, battling for Chicago on personal grounds. Gorman's break settled the contest, and after that there was plain sailing, but you have no idea how nearly St. Louis lost the convention through the ill-timed attack on Senator Blair made by a morning paper of

ST. LOUIS QUOTATIONS

They Are Spread Before the County To-Day

for the First Time. St. Louis had a good send-off for the firs day in which her market quotations were to be sent throughout the country. In the first place the Chicago market did not open to-day until 10:30 a. m., thus giving St. Louis an hour's clear start in having her quotations placed before the country; and secondly speculative trading was lively enough to cause prices to fluctuate fairly well. A rapidly changing market is, of course, the best and most attractive to speculation. Everything worked smoothly at this end of the line. The United Lines Telegraph Company had their wires in good working order and put that fast sender, J. W. Cook, at the key in the Exchange office. Ed Altemus, their Exchange manager, had the personal direction and supervision of the St. Louis markets, and himself handled all messages. These markets were put upon the wire and sent away as fast as the messenger boy brought them from Fred Stoble, the Exchange official reporter, who notes all changes in the markets here. From the office in the Exchange a direct wire runs to Kansas City and thence on to St. Joe, Leavenworth and Atchison. At Kansas City the St. Louis markets go to the Board of Trade and are posted there; thence they are sent to Omaha and Lin coln. A direct wire also carries the messages to the Peoria Board of Trade. Chicago will receive and distribute to the Northwest-Minneapolis, St. Paul and Duluth-but Milwaukee, Toledo, Detroit, Indianapolis and Cincinnati are all on direct wires. These points are all noted in the contract between the Exchange and the telegraph company, but there are many intermediate points between these different citles that will receive and post St. Louis markets. Thus, between St. Louis and Kansas City there are such towns as Holden, Sedalia and Jefferson City that will receive the quotations as regularly as do the contract points, and out further west and north and south there are many more. Quite a number of these places have asked the telegraph company to send St. Louis quotations to them. The company has also received messages from all points that will have the markets sent to them regularly, in which they express their satisfaction at the prospect of receiving them, and state that they will do all in their power to help along the enterprise. Some time after the markets were started out the following telegram speculative trading was lively enough to cause prices to fluctuate fairly well. A rapidly St. Louis grain." In answer to Secretary Morgan's request, sent to all contract points, that the St. Louis markets be posted in a prominent place on the Board of Trade, he to-day received the first answer, the Secretary of the Peorla Board of Trade writing that St. Louis quotations would be given the same prominence on their blackboards that other markets were. Other telegrams received were: Duluth, "Cuds coming finely and making splendid time." Milwaukee: "Everybody well pleased with them. Think biz will follow soon. We had a few starters for you. Business quiet here just now." Indianapolis: "Coming finely. It's something new here. Will do our best." A number of orders were received here from these points, showing that the new move was bringing good results already.

Although the Lower House refused to order to engrossment the bill granting the right of a louble track to Union avenue to the St. Louis Cable and Western Railroad, the people living in the district through which the track in question runs seem to desire the continuance of its operation. At least that is the view taken of the matter by Delegate Stone, who is also a member of the committee on railroads of the Lower House. Speaking of the bill to-day Mr. Stone said that a large number of the people affected by the failure of the operation of the double track, had made application to him personally requesting that something be done in the matter. The track was laid and operated under special license from the Mayor, pending the action of the assembly, and the people had just learned to appreciate its convenience when necessity will compel the road to let it lie idle and useless.

"The operation of the fifteen-minute trains the road proposed," said Mr. Stone, "was hailed with joy by the residents in that suburb and they had brought themselves to concede that the road was doing all it could for the convenience of the people. I do not see just what can be done. If something is not done the road will have to tear up the track and thus put the public to another great inconvenience. However, there may be a solution to the problem." Cable and Western Railroad, the people living

Several of the committees will meet to consider a few important measures. The Ways and Means Committee will endeavor to formulate a report on the bill introduced by belegate Monahan, taxing the proprietors and operators of base-ball parks in the sum of $2,000 per year as license. As there is only one ball park in the city, Sportsman's, operated by Mr. Chris Von der Ahe, that gentleman will be probably the only one interested in the defeat of the bill. The friends of the base ball magnate charge the members of the House with being a lot of ingrates inasmuch as they were all furnished with free season tickets to the park last season. A majority of the members are base ball cranks of the worst description and discuss the merits of the game in animated tones when no particular legislative measure is on hand. It is said that there are very few iriends of the bill in the House. Mr. Von der Ahe was notified to-day that the bill would be considered at the committee meeting to-morrow, but as he is on his way to New York it is hardly likely that he will attend.

The Committee on Raliroads will consider the bill to connect the steam division of the Cable & Western roads with Forest Park by a cable or steam road running from the Narrow Gauge track to the park on Union avenue.

The Committee on Sanitary Affairs will consider a bill taxing ice dealers $50 a year for revenue and the bill appropriating $6,000 for improvements at the Fomale Hospital. Several other committee meetings will also be held to-morrow afternoon.

Mayor Francis was called on to-day and con-gratulated for his convention work by several well known politicians. Collector of Water Rates Temple to-day turned in his monthly report to the Mayor giving statistics on the consumption of water during the month of February. The report of the Street Commissioner on Gas shows that during the past month the average candle power of the gas furnished to the city by the St. Louis Company was 17.77, and by the Laelede Company, 18.72.

John Hannicker, a 15-year-old boy living at Market and Tenth streets, called at the Dispensary this morning with half of the foreinger of his left hand blown off. He was examining an old revolver and finding one of the chambers "plurged" tried to "clean it out," which he did to his entire satisfaction. Dr. Priest dressed the wound.

The Spanish Camp Massacre.

Houston, Tex., March 1.—Full particulars of the massacre of negroes at Spanish Camp have not yet been obtained. The latest report is that seven were killed and one severely wounded. The cablu was approached while the inmates were asleep and kerosene oil poured around the bedding and then fired simultaneously. The murdering began as the half-sleeping negroes rushed from the burning house. Five were killed as they rushed out and two were shot in the house and their bodies cremated. Only one escaped and he is severely wounded.

A Strike Settled.

The strike of the workmen at Ronan's shoe factory, Third and Biddle streets, was concluded this morning and a portion of the hands have gone back to work. The remaining ones will begin work to morrow. For the present the waxes of the finishers will remain. A petition for divorce was entered this afternoon.

Suit had been pending for this latter sum against the road which agreed to meet the demand in consideration of the passage of the ordinance vacating the streets. In addition to this money the road has agreed to improve a number of streets leading up to, and in the neighborhood of the yards with granite pavement. The reconstruction of these streets will be commenced as soon as the weather has moderated with no prospects of again becoming unift for the work. The city fathers congratulate themselves on the deal and think that the municipality has got the best of the barquing Although the Lower House refused to order.

Although the Lower House refused to order residence territory was the popular from the fact that hundreds of thousands of dollars have been expended by private individuals for improving Cabanne place, Chamberlain Park, Clements place, Bartmer place and Hamilton and Horton places, all of which have been provided with graded and paved streets, sewers and sidewalks, without the aid of a dollar.

MID IN THE WAY.

The weather overhead was favorable to-day but the unsightly mud in the suburbs induced most agents to defer sh wing residence property in the new territory until after the March winds have improved the rural condition of affairs. House hunters have commenced looking for summer quarters with an eagerness that prompts the idea among agents that all kinds of residences will be at a premium before the first of May. Yet they say there has been no advance in rates yet, and do not predict there will be. Prices, however, are firm, and a good many first-class residences are being rented. Stores, too, particularly those on Oilve street, are in very active demand, for no sooner does one tenant give notice of quitting than another is ready to fill the vacancy and commences to embellish the place before the former occupant can get his fixtures away.

Republican, 7,475 majority over POWER, ocrat, Blaine's plurality in the State was only 8,308, or less than half of the Republican majority in that one district. In other words, the stupid opposition of the party leaders to tariff reform and to the reduction of war taxes has, in one district, the Republican stronghold, wiped out double the party plurality in the State in 1884. The Republican editor who can see in a majority of 402 for SEYMOUR an assurance that Michigan will support the Republican party and the present tariff this year could give Mark Tapley himself points on "coming out strong under difficulties."

KANSAS CITY KICKING.

Kansas City's real estate hoom has he ome quite an elephant on her hands. She is not so happy over it as she was last ear. Then she boasted of actual real estate sales in Kaw Township footing up more than all of Jackson County's assessment. This year the County Assessor has felt bound by his oath of office, the law of the land and the evidence before him to raise Jackson County's assessment from $56,910,835 to $126,199,810, most of the raise falling of course on the Kansas City property which had changed hands so rapidly at such coming prices. And now Kansas City is kicking 'like a bay steer' against the gotten of the approach of a presidential camraise, and the very papers that are predicting a still more active real estate market at higher prices for this year are trying to bulldoze the County Court into a revision of the Assessor's valuation, and no doubt a powerful pressure will be brought to bear on the State Board of Equalization to induce it to treat Kansas City real estate sales as fictitious, mere tricks of trade to take in outsiders, and not genuine tests of value.

But while Kansas City boasts of having attracted anywhere from $75,000,000 to $100,000,000 of foreign capital to her real estate and building operations and other business, it will puzzle her to tell why this addition to the wealth of the State should escape the taxation imposed upon all other values. If she induces the State Board of Equalization to largely reduce the valuation of the Assessor, will not such reduction discredit her claims, take some of the wind out of her alleged real estate sales and cause her distended boom to collapse? If she can be induced to take advice from St. Louis, she will accept that assess ment without a murmur. It will cost less than 2 per cent of her alleged increase of capital to pay all the taxes thereon.

As French Republic. It demonstrates the presence of a public spirit and a popular regard for public virtue without which no Republic is safe.

Let it be remembered that this sentence is no mere scapegoat sacrifice to party exigencies. The mere finger of suspicion pointed at the President's son-in-law oreated a demand for his prosecution which first overthrew a Ministry and finally insisted on for mere political effect, but was impelled by a wholesome public sentiment and genuine Republican feeling, was shown by the continued pressing of the alcoholic ward. He was suffering from an army as big as that of Germany if the charge against Wilson after every political object that could have been plished the peaceful aspect of Europe sought in that connection had been real-

The latter, who so recently was the wealthiest and most powerful of French statesman, has been reduced to a political cypher in France by his unwillingness to credit the charge against his son-in-law, and the son-in-law of the French President has been prosecuted and punished with as little consideration as any common malefactor, for countenancing, facompass the defeat of the Democracy than voring and abetting corruption in office. they were in 1884. Herr Possart expressed himselflas impressed with the State of New Jersey, but it was evident that this expression was more the result of predetermined and indomitable politeness than of a real conviction, because one really gets very little idea of New Jersey from a trip into the interior of the Pennsylvania Railroad station at midnight. The entire circumstances of this midnight start were calculated to depress a sunny-hearted foreigner about to take his first experience of American railroading. The train was made up entirely of sleeping-cars and from one end to the other offered to the hopeful eye of Herr Possart, nothing but a one-foot aisle walled with depressing j bed curtains and lighted with depressing the durtains and lighted with depressing the converse of the sick chamber. Herr Possart had a state-room. He did not go to sleep in it, but lay awake, and, as he afterward shamefacedly confessed, tried to guess at the consummation of the hours which lay between him and Washington. He was slightly depressed when he rose, and the tone of his spirits may have been still further lowered by the frozen and melancholy aspect of nature in the landscape through which the train rolled en the final stage of its passage into the capital city. He was not cheered by the sarly morning aspect of Pennsylvania avenue, though he smiled faintly at the remark of a New Yorker at the hotel later, who declared that the famous avenue was like an Indi

At the White House the three swallow tails were without company, but they looked very well even in their loneliness. The ladies had been left in the reception rooms below, Coroner Levy's arrangements for the reception not having contemplated the ladies. The President stood on the hearthrug ner Levy's arrangements for the reception not having contemplated the ladies. The President stood on the hearthrug in the library talking with two callers. He looked slightly annoyed, as a man does sometimes when a great many favors are asked of him. It was a time for the reception of Senators and Representatives, and evidently the President had been fairly well piled. Several groups stood about the room watching the President and one another. The atmosphere was undoubtedly constrained and formal. Herr Possart seemed to feel it and another touch was added to the several de-another touch was added to the several depressing influences of the morning. In two minutes the President dismissed four callers. Two of them went away with the assurance that he would "look into it," and that he would "see," and two walked off with evident fleas in their ears. Then the President recognized Coroner Levy and received him most cordially. Herr Possart and the rest of the deputation were gracefully introduced, and the President shook hands with rather less formality than had been shown by anybody who had shaken hands with Herr Possart during the day. The German actor was nonplussed. He had a formal little speech of compliment all ready to deliver, but there came no opportunity for it. The President was not at all a person to make a set speech to.

The President was not at all a person to make a set speech to.

HE CHATTED AND JOKED and laughed for ten minutes, and when the interview was over Herr Possart was a stirred and astonished man. He said that Democracy was beautiful and that he would watch the works of the June conventions with excessive interest. After the interview with Mr. Cleveland, Herr Possart was taken through the Capitol, where he heard Senator Vestand Gen. Weaver in the act of impassioned oratory. Still later he had lunch at Willard's, and after that he was lost in admiration of the amenities Still later he had lunch at Willard's, and after that he was lost in admiration of the amenities of a vastibule train. But the memory which was strongest with the German actor when he alighted in Jersey City was the memory of a ruler of 60,000,000 who had chuckled and passed easy compliments with him and who had given him in ten minutes' time no opportunity of getting rid of a speech that could be delivered in Germany without the slightest trouble.

A Mysterious and Brutal Assault Upon READING, Pa., March 1 .- Mrs. Wm. J. Miller. aged 21 years, was alone in her handsome cot was brutally assaulted by an unknown man who entered from the side yard. She had who entered from the side yard. She had gone into the sitting-room, when she was grasped from behind by both arms, and before she could turn around was thrown violently to the floor. In her struggle the lady was kicked and choked and finally went off in convulsions. Upon regaining consciousness, her assailant was not to be seen, and Mrs. Miller then discovered that she had been divested of her magnificent brown hair, the tresses having been cut off close to the scalp. A sharp pair of shears had evidently been used, as the work was very skillfully done. The lady has been in delicate heaith for several months and could only offer very feeble resistance. She immediately alarmed the neighbors and a search was made with-

The Husband Failed to Beturn

Judge Lubke to-day called up the conteste Foley. The husband was present when the case was called, but went out of court for his attorney and did not return. After waiting some little time the case proceeded on the wife's answer and cross-bill. She withdrew the first count of the cross-bill relating to a statement of the husband having another wife living at the time of the marriage. Evidence was given on the other allegations of cruel and barbarous treatment and various indigaties, and the Court granted Mrs. Foley a decree on her cross-bill, together with resoration of maiden name, Hickey. The petition of the husband was dismissed.

A Question for the Mercantile Community Judge Thompson to-day rendered a dissenting opinion in the Court of Appeals in the case of Theo. J. Witting against the St. Louis & San Francisco Railway Company. The Judge says: "The question involved is of & San Francisco Hailway Company. The Judge says: "The question involved is of such importance to the mercantile community and to public carriers as to justify me in stating before the close of the term the reasons for which I have been unable to agree to the conclusion reached by my learned associates. They were of opinion that the judgment of the Circuit Court ought to be reversed for allowing the following instruction to the jury: The Court instructs the jury that if they believe from the evidence that the soda apparatus in question was in good order when taken possession of by the railroad company to carry it from Oswego to St. Louis, that is to say not broken, and that it was properly packed for shipment, but that it was delivered in St. Louis in an injured and broken condition, then the law presumes that such damage and injury was occasioned through the fault of the railroad company, provided that the jury believe that by the exercise of ordinary care on the part of its employes the apparatus could be carried and delivered in the same condition that it was received."

Judge Thompson concludes: "If the conception of my associates of the liability of the carrier is the correct one its amounts simply to this: The carrier takes the chattel under an urth party arise, or the Democratic party dorse license, the result must be disastrou as it did before. It is true that it is broken in pleces, but under my contract I have no concern with that. Breakage was an excepted peril by the terms of the contract. What are you going to do about it? It is for you to find out when and how it got broken. If you can find this out by the testimony of my servants or others, and can prove that it was broken through my fault or negligence. If was broken through my fault or negligence, I will pay the damages, otherwise you must suffer the loss.'

"If this is the law it is time that the mercantile community knew it, and the question will then be whether the Legislature ought to allow it to stand."

A Compromised Benefit.

Judge Thompson to-day rendered a dissent-ing opinion in the Court of Appeals in the ase of Mrs. Christina Helling against the wises of death claims between benefit societies and their beneficiaries. The evidence showed a case of an ignorant old woman recently bereft of her son, who was a member of a secret society. Two of the highest officer called upon her, one a lawyer and the other a physician. The lawyer told her to call in a friend and she called another woman, a member of the order, and her son, a butcher.

LESSONS IN ESTHETIC LOVE AT THE OLYM-

Mrs. Potter in the Love Tragedy of Rem Acted Juliet-The Posing Passion of at the Olympic last evening. Kyrle Bel-lew played Romeo to Mrs. Potter's Juliet, have sung together and in the dispason of the universal har should have been a thin, small note in minor key-a chord that measures the theme of the meet-of two souls. It was a lesson in love in the modern ized, neutral-tinted, soft-toned, mus cle-bound intensity was redolent of the musk and madness of æsthetic and realistic passion. It was not the love that frolies and caper around in unreasoning joy or that surges over the bounds of conventionality and throws its ictims into an unconscious twist and tang of ecstatic embrace and rapture. It broke not frolic, it languished; it did not caper, it tripped and glided and wound itself around its object in graceful curves. It and rapture were expressed in the abandon nt of repressed intensity, in quivers and pitations, in quick, soft-toned exclamans that just litted the safety-valve of otton and fluttered forth in sighs and soft emotion and nuttered forth in sight and solv breathings.

It was "Romeo and Juliet" thoroughly Bellewed. With Mr. Bellew love is not a sentiment, but a pose; despair is not an emotion, but an attitude. And yet there is a poetic element in the man, a knowledge of art and of the possibilities of dramatic situation which makes him always correct and in a burst of fire admirable. Mrs. Potter, ito a certain extent, reflects Mr. Bellew's peculiarities and mannerisms and it is natural that she should. switch is a better critical weapon than a hick-ory club. The microscope is so filled with a pin-point detail that it misses the complete whole and a club is more easily wielded and more effective in the hands of a rock-breaker than in the hands of a scholar. A fool can make as big a show of killing a helpless novice with a club as a wise man. It is worth while discriminat-ing somewhat in viewing this new Juliet. At first glance there is one vast point gained first glance there is one vast point gained this is that Mrs. Potter looked Juliet, re was no overdone buxomness and plas-ere was no overdone buxomness and plas-ed wrinkles to make an ass of Romeo, but marvels of richness or were triumpus of the modiste, but they were artistic and were triumphs of taste and grace. Her dresses were as eloquent of Juliet as the voices of many of the aspirants. Now for a view of the other side. She was consolous that she was acting; there was too much of the jumping silde across the stare; she limited the scale of her vocal expression almost to a monotone in too many scenes; she posed deliberately and struck attitudes with careful correctness; she frequently talked through her teeth in head tones which make real power almost impossible. She gestured occasionally as if she were thinking whether she were giving the right gesture; nearly all of these counts necessarily detract from genuine feeling. And yet—this looks and of over-training and unwise and superfastidious instruction in lesser and incidental things.

When she grasps the fact that posing is not acting and that conscious attitudinizing is destructive of genuine emotion and natural effects, she will have taken along step in the direction of real improvement and ultimate success. Despite what has been said, there is something in her. She may have been too conscious of sweet simplicity in the first act to be thoroughly girlish, but she was sweet and winning. She showed afterwards that she had an idea of what leve is and could put passion and nestling tenderness into face and figure. She was charmingly coaxing in her scene with the nurse, and while the balcony scene was not handled realistically and was marred by affectation there were nice touches in it. In the scenes with her father and with the nurse when the news of Tybait's death is brought to her and in the potion scene she showed, particularly when it is considered that this was the scoond performance of the day, more power than she has been given credit for.

She did what it takes some art and talent to do, that is, accomplish what she was striving for. Take away the marring element of selfconscious acting, and the result will be as pleasing a Juliet as one would wish to see.
Let some one whisper in her ear that a touch of genuine nature is worth in the end a stageful of studied, although pretty, effects, and that a blunder in a burst of real passion is far better than absolute correctness with no ful of studied, although pretty, effects, and that a blunder in a burst of real passion is far better than absolute correct passion is far passion at all, and she will learn something to her advantage.

There was a bit of realism in the chamber scene, which was somewhat startling when the ruddy dawn of the bridal morning fushed the flowing drapery and love-lorn countenance of Juliet and the careless dishabille of Romeo into confessing blushes. Mrs. Potter must be credited with a genuine touch of nature and with delicately grasping and accentuating the spirit of the scene. Altogether her Juliet is something new and interesting.

There is one other thing to consider and this is the production. Mrs. Potter and her company had everything to do, for not a particle of ald was furnished by the scenery or accessories; they were simply a disgrace to the management of the star. It might at least be expected that an advanced price would command an artistic setting to the play, but there was not a touch outside of the stock resources of the theater. The cast, too, was shaded down to a very fine point on the lower end. Mr. Beliew, even through his femininity and unnatural affectations, made a poetic and interesting Romeo. Mr. Lee was the very essence and embodiment of the airy, flippant, jesting, bantering Mercutio, and scored a deserved hit. His Mercutio was an artistic creation. Mr. Conway's Tybait and Miss Carrie Jamison's Nurse, with the fair Capulet of Mr. Allen, completed the list of parts that deserve favorable mention.

Mrs. Potter will play "Romeo and Juliet" for the rest of the week except Saturday night when she will appear again in "Loyal Love." McKee Rankin is giving his fine natural im personation of Sandy in "The New Danites" it Pope's, and he is admirably supported by diss Mabel Bert and the rest of the company "The Highest Bidder" keeps the audiences at the Grand laughing from beginning to end. Owing to the hoarseness of Mr. Bishop, Mr. Buckstone took the part of Bonham Cheviot at the matinee yesterday and handled it capitally. Mr. Sothern is winning a host of admirers in St. Louis for his bright work.

The death of Mrs. Langtry's fither has oc-casioned many inquiries as to whether the beautiful star will play here next week. Mr. J. P. Reynolds, her representative, says that she will positively appear during the entire engagement. The sale of seats opened at the Grand this morning to a strong demand.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH. NEW YORK, March 1 .- The letter of Rosco Conkling to the Pittsburg Club, in which the Stalwart ex-Chieftain says he has no designs was interpreted in many different ways yes terday. The Blaine men appear to think that Mr. Conkling might be induced to cast his eyes towards the White thouse, and some of them contended that if he did receive the nomination, he would fare badly at the hands of the Plumed Knight's friends. There were other members of the party who thought that a man was wanted this time to whose standard thousands of enthusiastic young men would flock, and these veterans thought that Conkling, or some man like him, with pronounced individuality and wast personal magnetism, would be just the candidate. The Fifth Avenue Hotel and the Girey House, the resorts where the Republican leaders most do congregate, were almost deserted last night by the champions of the G.O.P.

makes him always correct and in a burst of fire admirable. Mrs. Potter, to a certain extent, reflects Mr. Bellew's peculiarities and mannerisms and it is natural that she should. The influence of the markedly individual and experienced actor, especially when it is combined with association and regard, is irresistible, and yet through the Bellew stucco shines her radiant self. The peculiarities of any man or woman never improve any other man or woman never improve any other man or woman never improve any other man neristic variations are always bad.

Still, the main point is, was there any beauty in the performance? Is Mrs. Potter beautiful? Is Mr. Bellew beautiful? Can there be the conjunction of a woman who smiles her way through dazzling teeth and airy vivacity into the heart of every spectator, in whom there is delicate refinement and a charming personality, a grace of carriage and drapery which aimost changes extreme thinness into voluptuousness, and of a slender gallant with a cameo face singularly youthful and delicate, and with big brown languishing eyes without beauty; can such a man and woman breathe and murmur and caress and suffer through the divinest love tragedy that ever was written and not turn the glare of electric lights into the mellow radiance of the harvest moon and the brash and time-worn colors of daubed canvass into the soft tints of gloaming-shrouded hill and delic?

A Big Franchise. CHICAGO, Ill., March 1 .- An ordinance has been introduced in the City Council granting a franchise to the Chicago Fuel Company to pipe natural or other gas through the city. The incorporators of the company say they have been investigating for some time the feasibility of piping natural gas to this city for fuel and liuminating purposes as well. They satisfied themselves that it could be done, and then secured conditionally several tracts of gas-producing territory in Indiana. A company was then formed, with a capital of $12,000,000, which has all been piedged, and if the ordinance is passed by the Council the company proposes to begin work at once, and within a year to furnish 10,000,000 cubic feet of gas every thirty days, and thereafter to hold itself in readiness to supply all demands, steadily increasing its facilities.

DISAPPEARANCE OF THE RACING STYLE OF OCEAN STEAMER.

hanges in Atlantic Travel - Increase Comforts and Speed - Dangers to the Long Narrow Vessel-What Non-Trust

Gerard Waterman of New York, who has for onversation with a Post-Dispatch reporter has taken me to Europe at least four times a year, and I have tried almost every line of steamers that runs between America and the eastern coast of the Atlantic. I thus have large opportunities of observation, and can say that the progress made during the last seven years is greater than during any period of three times the length since the Atlantic was irst crossed by steamer. The improvement is not only in speeds but in comfort, the latter having in past times been strangely neglected. Some twelve years ago the White Star Line began building a class of fast steamers, intended by their superior speed and greater attention paid to the comfert and convenience of passengers, to compete with the overwhelming reputation of the Cunarders for safety. For two or three years after the White Star steamers were put on the line but little change was observed, as the public were slow in changing their accustomed route, and did not at first recognize the advantages offered by the new steamers. They certainly were very weak-looking affairs, being extremely narrow, and very long, but in speed they far exceeded anything else affont, and not only were the cabins more comfortable, but the suffering from seasickness was much less. The cause of this was that these long steamers, resting on three waves when running against or before the wind, scarcely pitched at all, aithough they of course rolled as much as any others. The route at that time taken by the Cunarders was much longer, that company running their ships on parallels of latitude above and below was much longer, that company running their ships on parallels of latitude above and below the shortest route to avoid the danger of col-lisions, and this, taken in conjunction with their slower steamers, made the passage by the Cunard line from thirty-six hours to three days slower than by the White Star.

fortable as elsewhere, and the Cunarders began to lose custom fast.

"But within the last six years," Mr. Waterman went on to say, "there has been an enormous change. The Cunarders, recognizing the necessity of speed, have put on some of the fastest steamers in the world, and have relaxed their severe discipline as applied to passengers, although it is as strict as ever as regards the crew. The splendid steamers of the State Line, the only line flying the American flag, have attracted throngs of passengers; the German, French and Dutch lines have built new vessels, and the comfort afforded by a steamer of the present day is in every way far beyond that of the vessels of ten years ago, while the speed has been purportionately increased. There has been quite are trogression from the established by the White Star, as it became evident that these vessels/were very likely to suffer severe, and possibly fatal, injury. When riding on three waves they were and irable, but with a long swell it was found that the vessel might rest on but two waves, one at the bow and one at the stern, and when in this position was very likely to break her back. For this reason the long, narrow-build, well-named the 'ocean greyhound,' model, has been abandoned, and the length of the fastest vessels to-day is much lessen proportion to their beam than it was five years ago. The effect of the change in model and increased speed has been to break up the practical monopoly formerly enjoyed by the Cunard and White Star steamers, as other companies have built vessels of the other companies have built vessels of the best character, and to-day there are half a dozen lines, the American by no means the least, plying across the ocean, on which ac-commodations cam be secured utterly un-known fifteen years ago."

TWO POKER RAIDS

The Detectives Find Out That Gambling is Going On in the City.

Two poker raids were made by the police last night, and the keeper of one of the rooms is to be tried under the felony act for setting up and keeping a gambling house. About 10 o'clock Detectives Moberly and Kelly and Officers Fenton and Monrotus rapped for admission on the door of Charles Johnson's poker-room over No. 713 Pine street. The inmates were in no hurry about opening it, and placing their shoulders to the door the officers forced is in. There are a couple of side exits to the places and they did not want to give any of the Inmates a chance get out. Stud-horse poker is the game that is played there. Officer John Dolan of the Fourth District, attired in citizens' clothes had been playing in the game so as to insure making a case against the players. When the officers broke in Dolan was called out from among the players and pressed into service in the raid. The room was full of men, but most of them had not been playing. Those in the read. marched to the Four Courts where they were balled out.

Later, shortly before 12 o'clock at night, Moberly and Kelly, unaccompanied by any officers, paid a business call on the game run by S. D. Cave, over John Scott's saloon, Seventh and Olive streets. Mr. Cave was in and his game was in full blast. Seven players were captured there, the officers being admitted without any trouble. The men taken were Will Hoxle, Frank Jamison, S. D. Cave, Thomas Johnson, Jim Ames, R. Woodruff and James Edward Elliett. They all gave bond when taken to the Four Courts.

Ellett. They all gave bond when taken to the Four Courts.

This morning both batches of players were before Judge Cady, and they all pald costs. Then Moberly, Kelly and Dolan visited the office of Mr. Dierkes, where the last-named officer swore to information for warrant charging Charles Johnson with setting up and keeping a gambling-house. The date alleged in the complaint is February 27. On that date Dolan played in the game. He has been in the room several times, but played only twice, on the 27th and 29th of February. The authorities have tested the felony law with cases of poker, faro and craps house keeping. These tests have been very unsatisfactory as regards craps and poker houses, and the officers now want to try stud-horse poker. Johnson has been running the biggest game of this kind in the city, hence his selection as the one on whom to make the test. His game has been reaided a number of times by the police. This is the second time within a week. Stud-horse poker is more of the nature of keno or faro than ordinary poker, and skill does not cut so important a figure in it as in draw poker, the element of chance being greater.

Hudson, N. Y., March 1 .- Oscar F. Beck with was hanged at the Court-house in this city at 10:00 this morning for the murder of Simon Vandercook at Austerlitz, on January 10, 1882. This case has become celebrated from the fact that the condemned man had had two trials and his case has been twice from the fact that the condemned man had been sentenced to death six times. He has had two trials and his case has been twice passed upon by the general term of the Supreme Court and Court of Appeals, and finally application was made to the Governor for executive clemency, which was denied. Beckwith slept from 10 until early this morning. At 40 clock this morning Beckwith arose from his bed, and, standing up on his feet, glanced about his cell and again laid down and slept until morning light peered through his grated window. At 70 clock the prisoner arose, feeling refreshed after the night of rest, such as no man under sentence of death, save Occar F. Beckwith, could have passed through. He said that the fact was easily understood, as he was "used to trouble."

Beckwith and his victim, Simon A. Vandercock, were partners in a gold-mining scheme in the mountains of Austriltz, Columbia County. They had found ore and it had been assayed, but did not produce very large profits. The two quarreled, and Beckwith was anxious to get rid of Vandercock, as was shown in the evidence on the trial, he having expressed a desire to have him killed. About January 10, 1882, Vandercock suddenly disappeared, and Harrison Calkins, who lived not far from Beckwith's rude hut in the woods, went to the hut and inquired of Beckwith if he knew where Vandercock had gone away and would not be back until spring. There was a smell of burning flesh about the house which Beckwith said that Vandercock had gone away and would not be load until spring. There was a smell of burning flesh about the house burning. Appeals were taken to the general term of the Court of Appeals, which affirmed the sentence and the date of its execution was fixed for to-day. Yesterday a salt-water than an ordinary parlor center-table, attracted gazed in astonishment at a great sea feet thick. the waters of Pensacola Bay and is said to be there. Every variety of fish is displayed in boxes are filled with shrimps, lobsters, terraoins, soft-shell crabs and oysters. An abun lance of game, all that the season affords by way of variety, is arranged in very attractive and tropical growth and those that are im tion to this there is the show of vegetables, in-cluding all the home-grown varieties of the season, and everything in that line that can be procured from the South. Another attraction that line that the South.

the that can be procured from the South. Another attraction that epicures were delighted with was the prize beef and mutton and the excellent brands of smoked meats to be seen in the department where the most toothsome roasts and steaks and chops are to be found.

The place where all these delicacies are afforded has been christened Lincoln Market. It occupies two stores aggregating a frontage of 40 by a depth of 80 feet in the Rosenblat flats, and the established reputation of the promoters of the undertaking is sufficient guarantee to resident housekeepers and especially those in the new preferred residence section, that nothing but the choicest viands will be kept there.

Judy & Co. have the game and fruit department; John W. Peters, the leading fish monger of the city, manages everything in the line of sea-food; John Bentzen of Union Market supplies the vegetables, and George Pfarrer, also of Union Market, has undertaken to provide the market with an especially selected and superior grade of meats adapted to the taste of patrons in that locality.

The necessity for a first-class market-place in the West End has long been conceded and repeated attempts to establish one have been made during the past two years. It was intended to convert the Crescent Rink into a grand market-place, but an enterprising livery stable man secured a lease of the premises and since then repeated attempts have been made to get possession of suitable quarters elsewhere, but each effort falled, until Mr. Rosenblat was prevailed upon to let part of his elegant flat for the much-needed enterprise.

There can be no doubt that the spirit which prompted this undertaking will be appreciated for its full worth by residents of the West End, for whose special accommodation Lincoln Market has been established, as it is intended to more fully and satisfactorilly supply the larders of the West End than Union Market ever has. The bustle and confusion incident to the crowds who congregate at the latter place will be avoided, ladies in carriages will escape the danger of street collisions and their orders will be executed much more promptly than at the old market-place. Any article wanted may be ordered by calling up telephone No. 1856 and the goods will be delivered with all possible speed.

For many weeks Mrs. Beecher the advice of friends, she goes South to avoid the advice of friends, she goes South to avoid the March winds. A supper was served in the lecture room of the church from 6 to 7 o'clock at which those prominent in the affairs of Plymouth were present. During the lull Mrs. Beecher was called upon to speak. She said that while it gave her pain to part, even for a short time from her dead husband's flock, she only consented to go at the urgent request of friends. She would be gone two months. and if. by any chance, she train pushing it and a switch engine of the Bridge & Tunnel Company was backing east with a long train of empty cars attached to it. The rear end of the locomotive and the car at the west end of the St. Louis, Kansas City & Colorado train came together with a joit. Fortunately they were both moving quite slowly and the shock was only a slight one. The accident occurred on the puzzle-switch there. The passengers were shaken up a little, but not badly. No damage whatever was done the switch engine, the paint on its tender not even being disturbed, but the draw-head was knocked off the end of the coach. The trains separated, the car was taken to the shops for repairs and the train made the trip with only one car.

This musical treat is volunteered for the beneft of the Mary and Martha Society, whose efforts to relieve the suffering poor are wellknown. The severity of the winter has been hard upon the poor deprived of fuel, food and clothing, and to relieve them, the ladies from several parishes who compose the "Mary and Martha Sewing Society," under the direction of Mrs. Firth, their zealous and efficient President, have struggled hard to answer the many demands made upon them. In doing so they have been obliged to incur debts for material to work with. The debts are small and a little assistance will enable them to cancel their obligations. But winter is not entirely over, and the poor are still in need. The ladies hope for strong assistance in the matter. KIRKSVILLE, Mo., March 1 .- There is now, nor has there been, a single case of trary, notwithstanding. In an isolated coun trary, notwithstanding. In an isolated country community, about fitteen miles from here, there have been a number of cases of a disease resembling small-pox in every respect, except tatality. This disease has been confined to the community where it first appeared, some six weeks or two months ago, and physicians say there is no probability of its spreading further, at this late day. Greentop is within two miles of where the disease provide and yet there has not hearn a case in with them in spirit. After supper Mrs. Beecher was esported by a committee of forty ladies to the church parlor, in which the reception was held. The supper and reception were given under the aupices of the Ladies' Sewing Circle, an organization connected with the church.

Mrs. Beecher leaves on Tuesday, March 6, for Washington where she will spend a few days with the Hon. and Mrs. S. V. White. From Washington she will go direct to Palatka and will visit Jacksonville and other points of interest in Florida. She will have as a companion her granddaughter, Miss Anna Scoville, daughter of the Rev. Mr. Scoville of Stamford, Coun.

Barnett's Compton avenue brick-works, corner of Compton avenue and Atlantic street, were badly damaged by fire at an oil torches, which the men working there at night carry attached to their hats, one of the workmen spilled some coal oil on a bench on which he had placed the can while filling it. A spark from one of the lignted torches set fire to the oil and bench and the flames communicated to the building and soon the whole place was ablaze. An alarm was turned in from box 612, Chouteau and Theresa avenues. Fire plugs are scarce out there and the department worked under great difficulties. All the sheds and machinery were destroyed and a stable containing two horses burned. The unfortunate animals could not be taken out, the flames having enwrapped the building completely before any one thought of the poor brutes. The damage will probably amount to between $7,000 and $8,000, and is supposed to be covered by insurance. oil torches, which the men working there Afre was discovered in the building in the rear of No. 637 Carrie avenue, Lowell, at 6:45 this morning. It was extinguished by the Fire Department at a loss of 5:00 on a frame milk-house, $100 on a frame horse stable and $75 on a frame wagon-shed. The loss is fully covered by insurance in the American Central Insurance Company. Louis Notte of Lowell street owned the building. Joseph Sudbeck, who occupied the house, lost a new wagon valued at $100, and two sets of harness, milk cans. etc., valued at $50. He is insured in the Buffalo German Insurance Company.

Masculine Preferences of School Patrons A petition has been presented to the Teach-Committee of the School Board, relative ers Committee of the School Board, relative to replacing Miss Margaret Ludlow as Principal of the Grand View school with a male teacher, but it has not been very favorably received. It is stated that over three-fourths of the signers are persons who do not send children to the school. Miss Ludlow has done some very hard work out there, building up the school until it requires additional rooms. Chairman Barstow said to-day that the petition drawing a distinction between the sexes was something unusual, but so far nothing had been learned which would in any way reflect upon the ability of the preaent incumbent.

ARCHIE COMES BACK.

The School Director Returns From a Sudden

Archie Graham, the School Director, re turned this morning after an absence of a week. Last Monday his bakery was closed week. Last Monday his bakery was closed by the Sheriff in the interest of a commission house, and then inquiries were made as to Graham's whereabouts. He had not been seen for several days before that and some of his friends said he had gone on to New York to get pecuniary assistance from some friends. As his stay was prolonged one story and another got afloat, but this morning Archie walked into his old place and talked to the man in charge as smiling as ever. He has been circulating about town all day among his friends.

NEW STYLES OF HATS FOR MEN.

The Dude's Delight-Fashion for Colonels-

Here is what the straw hat manufacturers have prepared for this spring. The style will run mostly to yacht hats. Straight, narrow who was charged with being drunk on the streets. He was fined costs.

The Knights of Labor under the auspices of Branch 4212 are preparing a dramatic entertainment which will be executed in the near future for the benefit of the order.

A rumor is current that the old force.

can also be suited. The bands will be very broad and gay, and Solomon in all his glory never wore a hat-band like some of these. Some are striped in gorgeous cardinal, yellow and black; some are blue and some have figures of large size scattered about, one style being filled with acorns of natural size. I Many white fiannel bands are also used.

But the one to which the prize should be awarded is the panorama band. To get the good of this hat one must imagine a sweet little face under it, a cigarette and a moustance like the blush of dawn. The band is interesting, possibly much more so than the young man who will wear it. If a young lady finds this to be the case she might pass around the hat, meaning, of course, that she might walk around the weaver and enjoy his picture gallery. The art display starts out with two fierce dragon files, then comes a yachting party, then some distant sall-boats, then in the foreground a shell race and a party of scullers in the bright jerseys rowing some laddies, and finally comes conventional patterns. Truly this hat band is a poem on summer that should not go into the waste basket. Another fad is the dyeing of the under part of the brim to correspond with color of the band. Many straw bands will also be used.

The "Colonel" hats are a rushing success of the band. Many straw bands will also be used.

The "Colonel" hats are a rushing success and cargoes of them are going to all parts of the South. In Texas they are immensely popular and it is said that even the children cry for them. The "Colonel" hatis a fierce-looking fellow, with an Alpine crown, a big four-and-a-half inch brim and a thick band of straw. The Colonel crop in California seems to be good, too, but everything grows fast there. Numbers of these military hats are sent thither, but instead of straw bands the California warrior affects cord and tassels.

The Canton hat is nice. Made of needle braid, with little loops of whitest straw, it is the prettiest of all. Some heimets are shown. They are severely helmet-shape and are Western favorites. Many pretty styles of braids are shown and a new method of sewing hats has been introduced in which the straw laps over the stitching, concealing it completely.

From the Detroit Free Press. yesterday. "What's that?" queried a slender young man. "See those 'kids' over there young man. "See those kids" over there helping that girl get her ugly brother along." Everybody turned to look out of the windows, and saw a girl of 17, with a fair, fresh face, whose plump form was cheaply elothed, endeavoring to coax or force along toward home a brother of about ten years. He was striking and kicking at her and declaring he would not go home. At this several newshoys and bootblacks, who had been attracted by the struggles of the boy, said to the girl: "He'll go home, he'll go home; he's only fooling." The boy was then selzed by Exactive boy, and the chiral process of the boy had been attracted by the struggles of the boy, said to the girl: "He'll go home, he'll go home; he's only fooling." The boy was then selzed by Exactive boy, and the chiral process. others assisted from the rear and the young-ster was walked along at a lively pace, which was not relaxed until his home was reached. The girl thanked her young assistants, who all declared: "That's all right, sis; when you want any help jes let us know and we'll move him for you."

Withdrawals From Elevators for Twenty

St. Louis Markets.

FORENCON SESSION, CLOSING AT 1 F. M.

Weather bright and mild and prospects slim for much of a drop in temperature.—Since the last day of January the stock of wheat has decreased 1,045,000 bu, of corn is 603,750 bu larger and of oats 857,750. If the stock of wheat keeps on decreasing at the same rate it did lass month, the last of June would see this market bare of stock.—John McCann, the Nashville (Tenn.) miller, is at present in the city, presumably to lay in some of the glit-edged St. Louis No. 2 red wheat. He says, however, that at the price wheat is now selling here he can do better at interior points in Illinois, Indiana and Ohio. The early-sown wheat in his section, Mr. McCann says, never looked better than it does now; but later-sown is rather poor; but, as nineteen-twentieths of the crop is early-sown, Tennessee will probably raise a few wheat. The South, he declares, never was in a more prosperous condition and even the "niggers are eating flour," finding it cheaper than cornmeal. Mr. McCann seems to be-a little bullish, also, as he says the millers could put up flour 50c. a barrel and advance wheat loc. a bushel, if they would only do so, as the country must buy flour. Concluding with the advice to St. Louis that the trade here must look out for the big out rates between Kansas City and Memphis, and that the St. Louis roads running South must meet it to hold business. Mr. McCann concluded his address.—Deliveries on March contracts were moderate to-day. Francis Bros. and Cole Bros. together sent out 130,000 hu wheat, 70,000 going to Hubbard & Bartiett, who have it bought for export, and the balance to millers and mill shippers. Orthwein Bros. received 125,000 bu corn, which was all the corn sent out.—Confee declined frame in Havre.—Connor Bros. were buying East side No. 2 red wheat to-day for shipment to a Kentucky mill, taking three months, and St. Louis Markets.

Dr. George F. Weed Arrested for Complicity in the Great Robbery.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH. Bangon, Me., March 1 .- The sensationa se of the Bennett robbery was revived here yesterday with increased interest and ext. It will be remembered that in the fall of last year old Peter Bennett of Newport was assaulted in his home by two men and rebbed of over $30,000. The men beat the old man so badly that it was feared for a time that he would not live. The police arrested as the robbers two men namad Whitney and Foster, the latter said to be well connected in New York. Olty, and last week Foster pleaded guilty rather than stand trial and have his true name appear. Whitney also pleaded guilty, and both have yet to be sentenced. A new feature was developed Tuesday night when Dr. George F. Weed, the leading physician of Newport, and one of the best known medical men in the State, was arrested for compilcity in the great burglary. Sus-when Dr. George F. Weed, the leading physician of Newport, and one of the best known medical men in the State, was arrested for complicity in the great burglary. Suspicions have rested on Dr. Weed for some time, but on account of his position in the community where he has resided, and the fact that nothing definite could be traced to him, deterred the officers from placing him under arrest. The recent confessions of the other two prisoners, Whitney and Foster, the Young New Yorker, have no doubt implicated Dr. Weed in the robbery, although that part of their confession has not as yet been made public. The street was made by Sheriff Brown and Deputy. Sheriff Maloney, who went to Newport on Tuesday evening strain and brought the prisoner here yesterday morning. He stoutly denied the charge and sa d they were putting up a job on him.

Dr. Weed refused to see a reporter and requested that no one be admitted to see him. The officers also refused to tell much about the affair. The people of Newport have been cuspicious that Dr. Weed and others were implicated in this robbery and his absence from home that night, and the fact that he was with Whitney and Foster and certain others, playing poker in his office on Sunday afternoon, have been common talk. He was never willing to say where he was that night. Dr. Harvey dressed Mr. Bennett's wound, but Dr. Weed saw the old man the next day and was interviewed by several reporters about the case. The fact that Mr. Bennett claims to have lost $80,000 and is sure of it, while Whit-

Dr. Weed saw the old man the next day and was interviewed by several reporters about the case. The fact that Mr. Bennett claims to have lost $30,000 and is sure of it, while Whitney and Foster claim to have taken only $20,000, has led to the belief that others were connected with the robbery and got some of the money. The statement of Mr. Bennett that be believed some of his money was in circulation in Newport shortly after the robbery, also pointed to the same fact, and it would appear now as if some disagreement about the division of the spoils had exposed the affair more fully and led to the arrest of Dr. Weed. The doctor has been a resident of Newport for affteen years. He is a well-read physician and at times has had a large practice.

Clara Nally on Trial for Setting Fire to House of Refuge.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

BALTIMORE, Md., March 1 .- Clara Nally was yesterday arraigned in court charged with tting are to the Female House of Refuge in this city on Saturday last and also on Monday. Clara is an unusually pretty girl of 14 or 15 years, with bright blue eyes and light brown hair. Clara was assigned to assist Julia Eisel In the care of the furnace. On Friday last

In the care of the furnace. On Friday last Clara broke a dish, and Julia having reported the fact, clara determined to revenge herself. This she did by saturating some rags with oli and placing them in a closet in the cellar and firing them. The first attempt was discovered and the fire extinguished before any damage was done. On the second occasion the fire gained such headway that the lives of the sixty inmates were impersibled. Suspicion first pointed to Julia, who strongly protested her innocence, and detectives were called in. Clara was questioned, but denied all knowledge whatever of the attempts. Upon being more closely pressed, however, she confessed both to the detectives and the superintendent.

Clara has been in the institution since last time. She came from the western part of the State, having lost her mother and suffered severe treatment at the hands of her father. During the examination she maintained a stell difference and with all her heaven.

tought shy in the fourth round and but few passes were made. Shea's second claimed a knock-down for him in the fifth round, but it was not allowed.

The sixth round was a repetition of the fourth and fifth, with the men sparring for an opening. Farrell did some fine work in the seventh round, and as a consequence Shea came to the scratch in the eighth and final round somewhat dazed. Farrell forced him into a corner, and striking him a heavy blow in the stomach, caused him to gasp for breath. Shea staggered toward his antagonist and received another blow on his jugular vein. He fell like a log. When time was called he failed to respond, and Farrell was declared the winner. The fight lasted forty minutes.

Not So Bloody. Referring to the article which appeared in this column yesterday detailing a bout at boxing between Mr. Ed Wyman and Mr. H. Morris, it appears the former was solicited by Mr. ris, it appears the former was solicited by Mr.

N. M. Garland (a friend of the latter) to spar with Mr. Morris, Mr. Garland naming the following afternoon as the time for the event.
There was no personal ill-feeling or club rivalry between the parties, and the affair, in which ordinary sort boxing gloves were used, was of a very commonplace character, hohors being even and and the stipulated number of rounds gone through with without ill conseunences to either narry. The affair was in the oring even and anothe supurated nameer of rounds gone through with without ill conse-quences to either party. The affair was in the nature of a friendly set-to and the bloody ef-fects were probably a trific overdrawn. Both gentlemen are well to-day.

Chinese Play Ball.

"Wally Wallace," writing from San Francisco, says: "An absurd paragraph is going the rounds about Latham and the Chinaman. In all the years I've been here I don't remember ever to have seen a Chinaman as a spectator at a game, while a Chinaman is rarely met outside of the Chinese quarter. We had a game against Chinese once, however, but not the coolie, so familiar on our streets. I was coming down on the 'Overland' in '79, which I boarded at Sacramento, where I had been with my boys (I was managing the Californias at the time), when on the trains were two 'Pullmans' full of young Chinamen, fresh from Harvard University. I had read of their proficiency in base ball, and immediately sought to arrange for a game, which, after great difficulty, I succeeded in doing. More gentlemanly and better dressed young men—a la Caucausian—I would not wish to meet. We played the game, which, after an exciting struggle, they won. The renowned Patsy Cahili was my pitcher; Creegan, now of the Haverly's, catcher, and Frank Tuttle, second base. The latter, unknown to them, was the Oriented interpretary of the Oskland Courts. In all the years I've been here I don't rememmy pitcher; creegan, now Tuttle, second catcher, and Frank Tuttle, second base. The latter, unknown to them, was the Oriental interpreter of the Oakland Courts. Ching Yuen, their pitcher, our boys could do nothing with, except Frank, as Ching would speak his signs to his catcher. Gandaur's Lame Back.

The Boston Globe says: There were many dreumstances connected with the last race etween Gaudaur and Teemer that certainly between Gaudaur and Teemer that certainly do not bear out the lame-back story that has been extensively circulated, and one circumstance is that Gaudaur's friends bet their money on their man and would have bet every cent that they had were it not for the air of confidence that surrounded the Teemer party. Then another thing that will have a tendency to break down the lame back story is the fact that the party of Boston sports, which included all the sharpest men who have followed the races for years and enjoy the reputation of invariably getting the tip, went down to Maranacook strong Teemer men, and after a night at the hotel with the Gaudaur party they returned to the banks of the lake in the morning, and with the bare exception of Ted Daley, they placed their money on Gaudaur at slight odds, and the writer heard the spokesman offer Keenan to lay $700 to $1,000 that Gaudaur would win. To say that Keenan refused to take the bet would be simply stating that being an old timer and having seen the very sudden shift that was made he got a trife suspicious, or in other words "smelt a mouse.

What the approaching race will amount to would be a hard matter to predict, but it is safe to say that the presence of both men on the Charles River, undergoing a course of training, will do much to encourage rowing in the Bast. Teemer is a wonderful sculler when in condition, but he is not always sure of being in the shape that he was in last season when he met Hanlan and Gaudaur, and as Gaudaur is a very reliable fellow, a race at this early date will be anybody's race, for Teemer is never at his best so early in the season. do not bear out the lame-back story that has

The Cribb Club.

The first meeting of the Cribb Club in their new quarters on Seventh and Olive streets last light was a grand affair, many leading citizens sing present. The opening address was delivered by Charles Newton, Sr., the President of the club, and was loudly applanded. He was foilowed by several other gentlemen, who spoke very favorably of the art of self defense, and who hoped that the club would meet with the same success in the future that it had in the past. After the speech-making the members indulged in several friendly bouts, the several contestants being Albert Newton and Snyder, Dick Roach and George Raynoids, and the wind-up being between Lee Denmire and Charles Newton, in which both showed to admirable advantage, the dodging and clean-hitting of Denmire eliciting rounds of appliance. Though Denmire was too spry for his opponent, the old 'un showed remarkable agility in getting away from him at times. livered by Charles Newton, Sr., the President

Buby Anson, as the public call him, is just as full of tricks as a hive is of bees. One of his first tricks was played on Ross Barnes in 1873. Anson was then playing third base for the Athletics and Barnes second base for the Bostons. The two clubs were playing in Philadelphia. In the last inning Boston had one run to tie and two to win. There were two men out when Barnes came to the bat and hit for a home-run. As he came round to third base Anson caught him in his arms and commenced waitzing round till the ball was returned to the infield. The next man was put out, and the Athletics won, but it was a long time before the Boston club forgave Anson for his trick.

It seems to be a dangerous business to give "tips" on the races out in San Francisco. A couple of years ago the well-known horseman, Dan McCarty, advised Jacob Palmer, a friend, to bet on Beaconsfield to win a race at Sacramento. Palmer bet and Beaconsfield did win the race, but he was disqualified, because when the jockey weighed in he was found short of weight. So the race was given to John A., and Palmer lost his bets. Now Jacob Shain, who is the assignee of Palmer, has sued McCarty to recover the amount of money lost on the "tip." The outcome of the suit will be watched with interest among racing men everywhere. The amount involved is about $700.

When the gang he took a lot of the bills and went to Indianapolis, where, as Joe Woods, he engaged in various kinds of business, the object being to rid himself of the bogus money. He bought several houses and invested altogether about $25,000. Some years later he went East to operate, and in 1862 was arrested in a military camp in West Virginia for passing money. He was placed under guard to be taken to Washington over the Baltimore & Onio Railroad. He recognized the danger of his situation, as the military authorities were not so easily dealt with as civil officers, and death was very apt to be his punishment. Although heavily manacled he resolved to escape, and when the train was moving at a high rate of speed he leaped off. The fall broke several ribs, but he managed to escape into the timber before the train could be stopped. After incredible suffering he reached the house of friends. After that he was not actively engaged in the queer trade, but became an operating dentist in the employ of C. Granville French of Springdeld, Ill., and there in 1864 he married Martha Ackerman, for whom he had conceived an ardent affection years before. She was very handsoms and quite well versed in all the arts of her husband's trade. Immediately after his marriage he located at Nauvec. Ill., and engraved plates from which were printed the counterfeits of the $10 United States Treasury note, greenback variety, issue of March 10, 1862. He had made extensive pre-parations for the circulation of these notes, and got them going all over the country in large quantities. These plates were used until surrendered to the secret service four years later by Mrs. Missouri Rittenhouse of Osgood, Ind.

He attracted large audiences, circulated a large amount of counterfeit money in making change at the box office and paying expenses of himself and wife. The bills he used were a five and a twenty, printed from plates he had himself inade by Miles and George Ogle at Fort Wayne. Ind.

It has been said McCartney was a rapid engraver. He turned out plates in two weeks that other engravers required six months to do. His twenties were excellent from the beginning, though the plate was printed from after a fortnight's work on it. He improved the plate as experience showed it had defects, and in the end made a note that would pass at the banks.

He quit the lecture field for the regular business of his life and operated all about St. Louis from Nauvoo to Dallas and from Louisville to Denver. it. Two men entered without ceremony and before the astonished old man had time to assume the defensive, they had extinguished the light and made him a prisoner. With a gag made from a piece of a broom handle, they stopped his mouth. They then tied him hand and foot and chioroformed him, first placing a pillow on the floor, upon which they rested his head. Having thus disposed of their victim, they proceeded to search his pockets and the premises. They secured a large sum of money, besides various articles of value. The watch lying under the paper on the table escaped their notice. As Mr. Knickerbocker did not put in an appearance at the mill as usual in the morning, search was made for him. The neighbors who called at his house found him lying on the floor where the robbers had left was a large, thick-set man.
